

Rhymes are a very important part of language development. Rhyming helps children understand that words are made up of smaller parts. Please don't delay, share some rhymes with your child today.

Create a rhyming box by putting pictures of things, which rhyme into a decorated box. Try a sock and a clock, a spoon and the moon, a tree and a bee, a snake and a rake, a mouse and a house, etc. Work with your child to match rhyming objects together.

Play a rhyming game where you rhyme as many words as you can. You can make up words too. The sillier your rhymes the better.
